

For the continued safety and sanity of Flight Attendants I respectfully ask that you not consider relaxing the Cellular Telephone use on board aircrafts. Flight attendants already have enough pandemonium during boarding. A major safety issue would be during the demo, when passengers around someone loudly talking on their telephone would be unable to hear the demo. Most passengers are already visibly annoyed when someone gets on board while talking on their cell phone. They anxiously await the time when all passengers have to turn off their phones. Please don't relax the rules.
